The operation of the road, which rans the toolley line from Westerly and Watch Hill, and is now leased and operated by the Norwich & Westerly Railway company, will not be interfered with, Treasurer Perkins stated. President F. DeC. Sullivan of New York precided at the directors' meeting at which the decision to institute bankruptey proceedings was arrived at. The occasion for this action arose through a judgment for $15,000 obtained against the company by George E. Champlin of Westerly for damages for injuries received when the team he was driving was struck by a car of the company. The company had no money to meet the judgment, upon which an execution against them might have been taken out, and it was considered that the only fair way to protect the creditors, stated Treasurer Perkins, was to start the bankruptey proceedings. The officers of the company had found it impossible to make a satisfactory settlelement of the matter with the atterney for Mr. Champlin in the case and to safeguard the interest of the common creditors.
